EMPLOYEE SPOTLIGHT: SN. SO. WEIKUM

Sn SO Weikum works as a Site Supervisor overseeing Bay Area accounts primarily in Palo Alto. If you ever have the pleasure of engaging in a conversation with Mr. Weikum, you will find that he has a humbleness about him coupled with a clever wit.

Sn SO Weikum joined our GPF Team in August of 2021, as an Part Time (On Call) Security Officer. His first ongoing post was in May of 2022, where he quickly was assigned as a Site Supervisor and Promoted to Senior Security Officer.

When asked what motivates him to do his job well he stated, "Staying employed, mostly. I represent the company. The better I look doing the job, the better the company looks. If the company looks professional and the client is happy, we keep our contracts secure ... we all keep our jobs."

NATIONL BACK TO SCHOOL MONTH

It's September so you know what that means. Yes, the leaves are changing; yes, everything at Starbucks will once again be pumpkin spiced; but it also means the kids are headed back to school.

But before you pour that unusually large glass of celebratory wine, consider that your child now lives in a world where dangers are more prominent than when you were a kid. As painful as it is to consider, schools are no longer a bastion of safety. We, as parents, must instill a sense of awareness into our children if the worst should ever happen while they are at school.

This blog will provide tips to help you maximize your children's safety in the classroom:

THE MAIN ENTRANCE

Next drop off, just analyze your child's school main entrance ... does it look like it could handle a mass exodus of students? If not, we need to find an alternative route for a swift exit. Map it out, draw it out, then give it to your kids. We guarantee that google maps will be quite useless to guide your kids when they are on the inside of the school. However, it will be invaluable for planning rendezvous points on the outside of the school. Use Google Maps to get an idea of the quickest route to safety. It can also be helpful for figuring out where the nearest police station or fire department is located.
